1953

The NJSACOP Monthly State Chiefs Meeting for June 1953 was held at Police Headquarters in Union, NJ. State PBA President Howard Devaney addressed the membership, speaking "at length upon the condition which we were faced today—the lack of proper young men to apply for positions as policemen, the resignation from Police Departments of good officers because of inadequate salary, and the unfavorable conditions under which we must work."

1980

Chief Polahmus reported at the May monthly NJSACOP Meeting that the Statewide Police Emergency Network (SPEN) became a reality on April 30th, and that implementation of base stations will be included. The Chief thanked all of the Chiefs and NJSP Superintendent Pagano for their efforts in promoting the SPEN program. Deputy Superintendent Brennan of the State Police addressed the membership and extended the State Police's support to help make the new system a success.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY
DEPARTMENT OF STATE POLICE
STATE HOUSE

COL. H. NORMAN SCHWARZKOPF
SUPERINTENDENT

TRENTON, NEW JERSEY
PHONE: TRENTON 4212
May 1, 1936.

To all New Jersey Chiefs of Police:

In the Summer of 1934 we started developing the application of sound motion pictures to the identification of criminals. A number of experiments were made with 16 mm. sound equipment to test its feasibility.

A demonstration of these results before prominent police officials brought unanimous endorsement and recommendation for further development. Technicians and engineers on sound recording, light, photography, color, acoustics, and film emulsions combined to develop a modus operandi in which normal variables were reduced to constants, technique was standardized and operation simplified to push-button manipulation. With this newly developed equipment numerous experiments in the recording of sound and pictures were made and a tentative standard routine prepared.

On May 27th in Trenton, N. J., under the auspices of the New Jersey State Police and the presence of his Excellency, Governor Harold G. Hoffman, the first public demonstration of this equipment and its application will be made, and it is desired to extend to you a most cordial invitation to attend and to bring with you any associates or assistants you choose. After the demonstration critical and constructive comments will be requested, and your frank participation in this discussion is earnestly solicited.

Thanking you for the courtesy of your consideration, and sincerely hoping that we may have the honor and value of your presence, I beg to remain,

Very respectfully yours,
H. Norman Schwarzkopf
H. Norman Schwarzkopf,
Colonel and Superintendent,
New Jersey State Police.
